

Press Release
For free publication

Wikirating Founder Spoke about Crowd Intelligence at Friedrich Naumann Foundation

Gummersbach (Germany), April 17th – 19th 2015

Wikirating founder Dorian Credé was invited to speak at the seminar "Digitization of the Society - Consumption, Money and Work completely energized" (original in German: "Digitalisierung der Gesellschaft - Konsum, Geld und Arbeit komplett unter Strom") about the impact of crowd intelligence on credit ratings.

The seminar took place at the 'Friedrich Naumann Foundation – For Freedom.' in Gummersbach, Germany, which offers political education in Germany and abroad. The seminar showed examples of the next generation of financial service providers (apart from Wikirating, e.g. the social trading platform Wikifolio) and discussed disruptive technologies, how innovative companies become "game changers" with completely changed rules of the game in the markets.

About Friedrich Naumann Foundation For Freedom.

Based on the principles of liberalism, the Friedrich Naumann Foundation for Freedom offers political education in Germany and abroad. With our events and publications, we help people to become actively involved in political affairs. We support talented young students with scholarships. Since 2007, the addition "for freedom" has become an established part of our foundation's name. More info at <https://www.freiheit.org/>

About Wikirating

Wikirating is a worldwide independent, transparent and collaborative organization for credit ratings. It offers an open and centralized place for all credit rating related topics, and credit ratings for countries, corporations and other financial products. Wikirating unites rating experts, economists and investors. More info at <https://wikirating.org/>